40 Tip – Asset #7 Young person believes that adults in the community value youth.

Parents can help community members show your children they are valued. Develop personal connections in stores that you visit often: make it a point to chat with the owner or workers you usually encounter, and include your children whenever you can. Even in stores where owners don't mind your handling every item, ask permission for each item so your children learn what to do. Volunteering together offers the opportunity for your children to receive thanks for their contributions.
