Developmental Asset – #40 – Positive View of Personal Future

Young person is optimistic about her or his personal future.

- Parent, agency, and community responsibility
- Encourage each young person to find their passion in life
 - Youth need exposure to possibilities, both for finding their interests and what living a life with that passion might look like, e.g. occupations, hobbies, research, teaching, etc.
 - Their passions are often unrecognized but visible at a young age (+- 8 years old). Often related to what they like to do or what strengths they have.
 - Be open to ANY passion (e.g. Steven Spielberg's early years when he filmed messes he created).
- Youth need support for their passions
 - Enlist neighbors, friends, books, field trips, prominent people in area of passion
- Help youth plan and set goals so they learn they have control about their futures
- Make sure you spend time with your passion frequently, at least weekly, even if only reading!
- Read about people whose passion has led to success, Blake Leeper and Hugh Kerr on the Internet. (More at <https://www.cnn.com/2017/12/13/us/cnn-heroes-2017-young-wonders/index.html>)
- Be positive about their future! This may be difficult in today's milieus with real and fake news and opinions coming from all directions. Help your children understand all viewpoints of controversial issues, whether local or international, point out challenging times in the past which are now behind us, and suggest possible ways their passions may be applied to make a difference.
